EXERCISES

Que 1: What are the different forms of power sharing in modern democracies? Give an example of each of these.

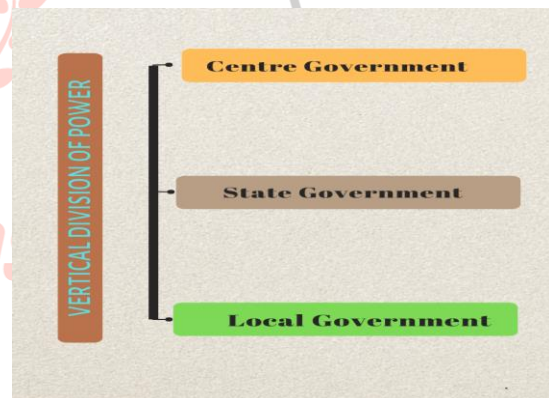

Ans: Different forms of power sharing in modern democracies:

1. Horizontal division of power:

It is the sharing of power among the different organs of government. The division of government into the executive, the legislature and the judiciary is an example of horizontal division of power. In such a power sharing arrangement, different organs of government, placed at the same level, exercise different powers. This separation of powers ensures that no organ exercises unlimited power. Each organ checks the others, thereby putting in place a system of checks and balances. The division of power between the Council of Ministers headed by the Indian Prime Minister, the Parliament of India and the Indian Supreme Court is an example of this kind of power sharing.

2. Vertical division of power: It is the sharing of power among governments at different levels - a general government for the entire country and governments at the provincial or regional level. For example, in India, the Constitution defines the way power is to be shared between the Central or Union government and the various State governments. There are certain matters on which only the Central government can take decisions, while there are others on which only an individual state government has an exclusive right for decision making.

3. Division of power among social groups: Power can also be shared among different groups which differ socially. The system of 'community government' in Belgium is an example of this type of power division. This government is elected by people belonging to one language community (Dutch, French and German-speaking), and has the power to take decisions regarding cultural, educational and language related issues. The system of reserved constituencies in India is another example.

4. Division of power between political parties, pressure groups and movements: Political parties are the organisations which aim to control power by contesting elections. In a democracy, citizens have the freedom to choose among the various contenders for power (the different political parties or the different alliances comprising political parties). Such a freedom of choice entails competition among the different parties, which in turn ensures that power does not remain in one hand, and is shared among different political parties representing different ideologies and social groups. Pressure groups and movements also share governmental power, either through participation in governmental committees or by influencing the decision-making process.

Que 2: State one prudential reason and one moral reason for power sharing with an example from the Indian context.

Ans:

Prudential reason:- India is a densely populated country. It is not possible to make laws, make peace and order for the whole country through a single government. Therefore, the government has been divided into different levels and the division of functions among them has been done in writing in the constitution, so that these governments can rule without quarrel keeping in mind the interests of the people of the country.

Moral reason:- Power distribution is necessary in a democratic country. If there is only one type of government then it will become autocratic, maximum people will not be able to participate in governance which is essential for democracy. Hence the classification of governments at different levels in India has been done.

Que 3: After reading this chapter, three students drew different conclusions. Which of these do you agree with and why? Give your reasons in about 50 words.

- Thomman - Power sharing is necessary only in societies which have religious, linguistic or ethnic divisions.
- Mathayi - Power sharing is suitable only for big countries that have regional divisions.
- Ouseph - Every society needs some form of power sharing even if it is small or does not have social divisions.

Ans: We agree with Ouseph's conclusion that there is a need for power sharing in every society. Even if it is small or there is no social division. Because the distribution of power is good for a democratic system. Power sharing is the soul of democracy. Democracy only means that the power is divided among the people who are under this system of governance. Legitimate government is one where all groups participate in governance.

Que 4: The Mayor of Merchtem, a town near Brussels in Belgium, has defended a ban on speaking French in the town's schools. He said that the ban would help all non-Dutch speakers integrate in this Flemish town. Do you think that this measure is in keeping with the spirit of Belgium's power sharing arrangements? Give your reasons in about 50 words.

Ans: This decision goes against the spirit of Belgium's power-sharing system. Sharing of power among different social groups is the basic spirit of power sharing. The ban on speaking French was a one-sided decision. It hurts the sentiments of minorities.

Que 5: Read the following passage and pick out any one of the prudential reasons for power sharing offered in this.

"We need to give more power to the panchayats to realise the dream of Mahatma Gandhi and the hopes of the makers of our Constitution. Panchayati Raj establishes true democracy. It restores power to the only place where power belongs in a democracy in the hands of the people. Given power to panchayats is also a way to reduce corruption and increase administrative efficiency. When people participate in the planning and implementation of developmental schemes, they would naturally exercise greater control over these schemes. This would eliminate the corrupt middlemen. Thus, Panchayati Raj will strengthen the foundations of our democracy."

Ans: Prudential reasons give beneficial results. The prudential reason in this quote is that the distribution of power at the panchayat level will reduce corruption and increase administrative work.
